Debbi Lashbrook
BERNINA Educator
dlashbrook@berninausa.com

Debbi Lashbrook, started sewing at the age of nine and pursued her love of clothing design and textiles by receiving a Masters degree in Textiles and Design from the University of Illinois. She taught textiles, textile chemistry, and tailoring at the University of Illinois for nine years before moving to Texas. She continued to teach textiles, garment sewing, garment fitting, apparel production, home dec, embroidery, and software at a fashion college and at several fabric stores in the Dallas area.

She started teaching at the BERNINA Sewing Center in Plano, TX in 1985 and managed the store for five years before joining the Education staff of BERNINA of America. Her specialties include garment construction, pattern drafting and fitting, and BERNINA Embroidery software, and BERNINA DesignWorks Suite software.
